Questions and background information that may be needed for discussion may be researched before the meeting. The package should include the meeting minutes from the previous meeting(s). Board Reports and Agenda Item Submission forms.

- Board Reports (Finance, College, Administrator, Parent Association, Development, High School)
- Decision Items (Submitted on Agenda Item Submission Forms)
- Review action items assigned during meetings/highlight upcoming items
- Process review
- Closing Verse

Meeting Decision Making Process

A consensus based decision making process is used for decision making.

The structure:

Discussion of the item: The item is discussed with the goal of identifying opinions and information on the topic at hand. The general direction of the group and potential proposals for action are often identified during the discussion. Multiple concerns and information are shared until the sense of the group is clear. Discussion involves active listening and sharing of information and active participation of all members.

Formation of a proposal: Based on the discussion a formal decision proposal on the issue is presented to the group.

Call for consensus: The facilitator articulates the sense of the discussion, asks if there are other concerns, and proposes a meeting minute of the decision. Each member of the group states their agreement with the proposal, by using a hand gesture (i.e. thumbs up/down), to avoid the group interpreting silence or inaction as agreement.

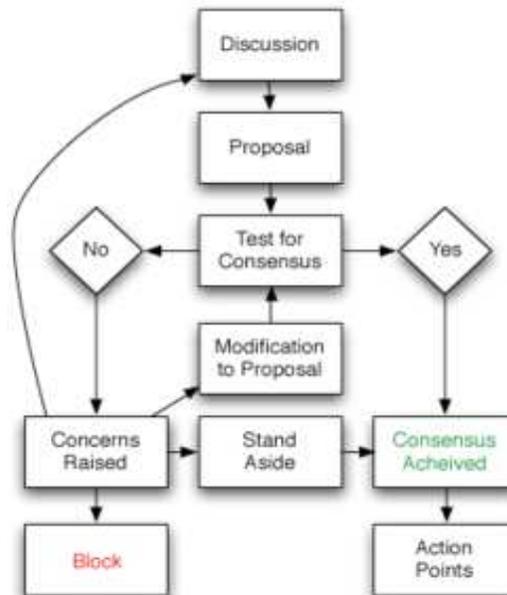

Identification and addressing of concerns: If consensus is not achieved, each dissenter presents his or her concerns on the proposal, potentially starting another round of discussion to address or clarify the concern.

Modification of the proposal: The proposal is amended, re-phrased or ridered in an attempt to address the concerns of the members. The process then returns to the call for consensus and the cycle is repeated until a satisfactory decision is made.

When a call for consensus on a motion is made, a dissenting member has one of three options:

- Declare reservations: Members who are willing to let a motion pass but desire to register their concerns with the group may choose “declare reservations.” If there are significant reservations about a motion, the members may choose to modify or re-word the proposal.
- Stand aside: A “stand aside” may be registered by a member who has a “serious personal agreement” with a proposal, but is willing to let the motion pass. Although stand asides do not halt a motion, it is often regarded as a strong “nay vote” and the concerns of members standing aside are usually addressed by modifications to the proposal. Stand asides may also be registered by members who feel they are incapable of adequately understanding or participating in the proposal. Those who stand aside will not be called upon to implement actions relative to the proposal.
- Block: Any member may “block” a proposal. A single block is sufficient to stop a proposal. Blocks are generally considered to be an extreme measure, only used when a member feels a proposal endangers WSOC or its participants, or violates the mission of WSOC.
